

Solwise pumps up the power

Solwise has launched the latest version of its ethernet plug adaptor, with the firm hoping its power pass through technology will help to differentiate it from the competition.

Unlike past models, this one not only allows people to use their home electricity set up as a wired network, the new adaptor also allows owners to continue using the plug without any problems or interference to the network's operation.

It also comes with SimpleConnect, a function that allows owners users to seamless secured network at the press of a button.
Solwise:
0645 458
4558

Dazzle your customers

Avi's consumer division Pinnacle has taken the wraps off the latest products from its Dazzle Video Capture family.

The Dazzle DVD recorder allows users to easily back up their old VHS tapes to DVD, the Dazzle Video Creator allows users to record those same VHS tapes but take advantages of the major improvements in non-linear editing and cut, trim and burn their memories to DVD in a professional looking way. Dazzle Video Creator Platinum brings the same benefits of its sister product but gives users the ability to add movie effects to them, as well as transferring their videos to Apple's iPod and Sony's PSP.

Ingram Micro: 0870 166 0100

The Dazzle video range allows customers to back up their old VHS videos as well as edit them into masterpiece memories and burn them to DVD

Gear 4 the summer

The DUO has serious power behind it

Gear4 has unveiled its latest iPod speaker system, the DUO. The DUO is a 2.1 home stereo speaker system with a detachable portable speaker in one package. Because of its 'Made for iPod' status, you can be sure that Apple's iPod is fully supported making it an ideal margin maker for any retailer looking to make a little extra money from sales as we approach the holiday season.

Gear4: sales@disruptivegroup.com